COVER

Ruth Oliver, Malden, Massachusetts, executed this exceptionally interesting photograph of five Abyssinian kittens. It was the $1,000 Grand Prize winner in the pets and animals classification of last year's Annual Newspaper National Snapshot Awards contest.

PIERSON HEADS NCW

Here's a dual set of congratulations: To Truman T. Pierson whose acceptance of the presidency of National Cat Week has just been announced, and to National Cat Week for having chosen him.

As a long-time associate of the late NCW president Guy Bogart, as founder of Allied Cat Lovers International, Inc., and as a life-time friend of cats, Mr. Pierson is acting in the great traditions of the cat world when he joins with National Secretary Rollin Cable and the other tireless NCW workers in promoting the interest of all cats through National Cat Week.

Mr. Pierson writes, "I am not a breeder or fancier, but a lover of cats, and I could fill books about the loves I have had. Nip, a twenty-two-pound Red Persian saved our lives. Ruffle Kin Tuffle, a Brown Tabby, was my first kitten. My present one is a Siamese gentleman named Sabu Cutler Mellen Sutherland Pierson in honor of cat lovers Sabu of Hollywood, Veterinarian James Cutler of Minneapolis, Scientist Ida M. Mellen, Dean of Catdom, and Gertrude Sutherland. There is not enough money in the U. S. Treasury or the Bank of England to buy him. My wife, Edna May and I would lay down our lives to save him."

True cat lover Truman Pierson, here's to you and to all who serve with you in the great new work which you have undertaken. May National Cat Week fulfill in ever greater measure its high potentialities for the health, welfare, and advancement of all cats.

Cats Question Box

Conducted By E. A. Renaux, D.V.M.

Our problem may not sound like much to you, but it does concern us that Tommy, three-year-old Shorthair neuter regurgitates his food fairly frequently with no apparent reason. Doesn't seem to upset him even though it happens in an almost explosive manner, generally about five minutes after eating.

We feed him twice a day, a moderate portion of salmon in the morning and a variety of beef, lamb or chicken at night. He will not eat canned food.

—Mrs. Harry Wein

3501 Ventnor Ave., Atlantic City, N. J.

Apparently this is due to uncontrollable spasms of the muscles of the stomach. It might be due to the actual condition of the nerves controlling the stomach, or there may be some trouble along the esophagus associated with the swallowing of the food. This difficulty in swallowing would not necessarily be apparent to you, as the food would go down, but not completely into the stomach. Add some B vitamin complex to his diet and if the condition should get worse, it might be necessary to have some X-ray studies made.

Could offensive breath and considerable sneezing be symptoms of cat catarrh? What is the treatment?

—Mrs. C. L. Baxter

385 Whiting St., Hanover, Mass.

This could be the result of a sinus irritation or infection. The teeth might be a factor in it, too. Treatment would consist of antibiotics to help combat infection, medication to help dry any excess secretions, and removal of any bad teeth. This condition has also been treated by a technique which consists of surgically opening and draining the sinus areas.

Three months ago I had tartar removed from the teeth of both my cats. The gums remained inflamed and gingivitis set in. On my veterinarian's advice I apply Gentian Violet three times a day. I have used peroxide and glycerous peroxide plus ceramycin. Nothing has helped and he says it looks like the teeth will have to be extracted. It seems like drastic action as one of the cats is only three years old . . . the other is eight.

—Violet Minton

Greentown, Pa.

I have used ascorbic acid, vitamin C, either in tablet form or by the addition of canned stewed tomatoes to the diet and it has helped some cases. In others extraction was necessary.

All this talk about change of diet—my veterinary book says if any veterinarian tells me to change a cat's diet as the only cause of some ailment, to get another veterinarian. Right or wrong?

—Mary Ann Dooley

2286 Jackson St., San Francisco, 15.

Have you never heard of ailments called scurvy, pellagra, rickets? We do not run into them often anymore, but they are present, and it has been proven that a correction of diet will not only cure these conditions, but prevent them from occurring. From my personal experience I have seen remarkable changes in cats when diet was the only change.

You mentioned a remedy for "grease tail" in a recent column. Just what is this condition. My females have a brownish-orange discoloration near the base of the tail and it seems to cause them pain if this part of their tail is touched. What causes this problem? I have tried boric powder but it seems very ineffectual. Under black light, the spots glow something like fungus. Could it be some sort of fungus?

—Mrs. V. Springer

7018 San Luis, Bell, Calif.

This is usually caused by an oily secretion and can produce an irritation and a very "messy" appearance. Cleaning the area with a mild detergent will help. Many things "glow" under ultraviolet light that are not fungus infections. Further diagnosis is necessary to be sure whether or not the condition would be a fungus.

MICKEY

Dear Editors:

His name was Mickey and he was, by far, the dearest little cat that ever lived. Unfortunately, his short life ended tragically when he was hit by a car.

I think his most endearing features were his crossed eyes. All he had to do was sit and look at us and it seemed our world was made happier. His face was so expressive and I would like to share with all cat lovers a gentle cat's portrait.

SOME DAY — SOME DAY

Dear Editors:

I subscribe to your magazine not because I am in the race to win titles for my cat but simply because I dearly love them and enjoy seeing their pictures and reading about them.

I feel there are probably a lot of subscribers who feel the same way, so why not more pictures. Color photos would be wonderful.

STAMP OF APPROVAL

Dear Editors:

Speaking as new subscribers we wish to congratulate you on the contents, presentation and form of your magazine. We have really enjoyed the April issue, comparable to anything we have seen in Europe before we came to this country. Especially the article, or rather the editorial, Space Companion. It was an excellent summary of what all the cat lovers feel: love for this animal is not a hobby but rather a trait of a good character.

We are stamp collectors and don't you agree that the cat should merit a place in U. S. philately? Couldn't CATS Magazine or one of the associations present such an idea to the proper authorities?

TEN

Dear Editors:

I am glad to hear from you and I am glad to write. I really do not have a cat but I hope someday to have one.

I got your magazine for my tenth birthday last year and I was very happy to read them if I do say I saw a little kitten in the January issue that looked like a friend's kitten.

I got fifteen china kittens and four stuffed ones. But the cat I love very much was my black one because it is my first one. I got it when I was a baby.

BULLY LITTLE CAT

Dear Editors:

Snow Flurry lives in Alaska. He seems to be adopting the personality of a famous south-of-the-border animal, however. Quite like Ferdinand the Bull, he loves sniffing flowers. Doesn't bother them, just likes to smell them.

Actually he is a very clever cat and his favorite trick is catching a ball in the middle of a bounce and carrying it to someone who will throw it again.

NEED FOR KNOWLEDGE

Dear Editors:

You recently printed a letter from a disappointed subscriber. Although I don't agree with her completely, she did hit the nail on the head when she said she wanted more articles for the one-cat owner.

There are so many conflicting opinions on proper feeding for the cat and none seem to be substantiated by scientific findings. Couldn't you get a DVM to report on any research that has been done in that field?

Mrs. Olaf Larsen

SEVENTY-SEVEN

Dear Editors:

I want to tell you how much I love CATS Magazine. I have made many good friends by writing to those whose letters you publish.

I don't know when my subscription expires, but here is payment for two more years. I would send for a longer period but I am going to be seventy-seven this year and I don't know how long I will be here to enjoy it. I have twenty cats and they are all so sweet and loving; I will never be without cats or CATS.

I somehow feel that everyone at CATS Magazine is my friend.

Mrs. J. D. Brady

I PASS

Dear Editors:

With the busy household I have, I wonder when I could ever find time to reread my CATS Magazine. I enjoy passing them on to others. My copy makes its rounds in a bank and then goes I'm not sure where.

I was surprised to read in McCall's that they suggest the reader give the magazine to someone else when they are finished with it. I get a kick out of mailing your publication to friends, even the out-of-the-country ones who I know love cats.

Mrs. D. H. Walker

ANOTHER PASS-IT-ONER

Dear Editors:

I thoroughly enjoy CATS Magazine and get much information on how to keep my cats healthy and happy.

When I am finished with it, I pass it on to a twelve-year-old boy who has Muscular Dystrophy and is confined to a wheel chair. He has a lovely cat and since reading about other people's pets, he has grown more proud of his love for his cat.

Thank you for a wonderful magazine.

COVER GIRL BLUE POINT

Dear Editors:

I was thrilled beyond telling to see my "Platine" on the April cover in her beautiful photo by Sal Celeski. Your readers might like to know that she is, to give her full titles, Royal Merit Quadruple Grand Champion Van Lyn's Platine, Blue Point Siamese female, who has been a two-time sectional winner—with a third coming up this year, I hope!

Again, thanks for the honor.

CATS Magazine Names All-Western And All-Mid Western Cats

The middle sections of this July issue of CATS, and of the August and September issues, are special bonuses to our readers inviting them to view the finest show cats in America—those who have earned the CATS Magazine awards for show accomplishment during the season which ended in April 1960.

These All-Sectional and All-American awards are not personal judgments, but are mathematically computed from the show wins of every cat of every breed, color, and sex which appeared in any show in the United States and Canada. This month we introduce the winners from the West and Midwest. August will feature the South and East, and in September will be the finals—the All-Americans and the Cat and OS Cat of the Year.

Through the cooperation of many of the gorgeous winning cats and their gracious owners, you are invited to view these All-Westerns and All-Midwesterns and their Honorable Mention understudies starting on page 16.

BURMESE TOPS THE WEST

Marking a new high in achievement for his breed, the sensational Burmese male Tr. Ch. Mizpah's Clancy of Reno, Nevada, out-pointed all the other cats in the West to become the 1960 High-Scoring Western cat. Owned by Frank and Vivian Chartier, he will now compete with the other top sectional cats for 1960 Cat of the Year.

Only a step behind was Mrs. Walker K. Johnston's marvelous Db. Gr. and Qd. Ch. Windibank Patti Kake of Azulita from San Diego, California, who will now vie for OS Cat of the Year honors. This is her third year of top wins: in 1959 she was High-Scoring Western Longhair, and in 1958 OS HSWLH.

Opposite Sex Longhair this season is Carolyn Topping's Qn. Ch. Blue Check's King Tut of Tops Cats, Black male; and OS Shorthair is Qd. Ch. Du-Bu Faith of Domineau, Imp., Seal Point female owned by Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Warfel. Other Western division winners are: HS Manx—Db. Gr. & Qn. Ch. Ocean View Blue Paisley, OS—Db. Ch. Tra Mar's Flash; HS Domestic Shorthair—Tr. Ch. Navajo's Moonlight Gambler, OS—Tr. Ch. Barefoot Contessa; HS Kitten—Smithway Politician, OS—Dearheart Tira Marie.

For the first time, All-Western Neuters and Spays were computed. Top Neuter was tied between Rosedere Pishi and Db. Premier Hi-Tai's Black Magic. High-Scoring Spay was Ch. Mitzie of Gray Ivy.

Longest consecutive record of Western wins goes to Db. Gr. Ch. Midnight Shadow of Golden Shadows who has been on the Western roster every year since 1955. Even more of a veteran

WESTERN TOP TEN

1. Tr. Ch. Mizpah's Clancy, Burmese Male
2. Db. Gr. & Qd. Ch. Windibank Patti Kake of Azulita (AW, AA 58, 59), Orange-Eyed White Longhair Female.
3. Fan-T-Cee's Kabarr Kenny (HSAW, SHY 59), Blue Point Siamese Male.
4. Tr. Gr. & Qn. Gray Ivy Pixie (WHM 56; AW, AHM 59), Chinchilla Longhair Female.
5. Gr. & Tr. Ch. Beverly-Serrano Petite, Chinchilla Longhair Female.
6. Qn. Ch. Blue-Check's King Tut of Tops Cats (AW, AHM 59), Black Longhair Male.
7. Qd. Ch. Du-Bu Faith of Domineau, Imp., Seal Point Siamese Female.
8. Gr. & Qd. Ch. Red Wing's Cho-Abi of Elo-Yse, Frost (Lilac) Point Siamese Male.
9. Fan-T-Cee's Enchantress (AW, AAK 58; WHM, AHM 59), Seal Point Siamese Female.
10. Quinn's Blue Knight of Fan-T-Cee (AW, AHM 57; AW, AA 58; MHM 59), Blue Point Siamese Male.

is Qd. Ch. Shawnee Cardinalette who began winning in the West in 1953, and who lacks only one year out of the eight since then.

Blue Paisley made her first Western win in 1954, as did Navajo's Copper Blaze who appears this year as a Neuter. McKinstry's Spots, WHM this year, has an All-Southern record which began in 1953. Ten of this year's winners made their first CATS awards in 1956, seven in 1957, eleven in 1958, and twenty-nine are repeating initial 1959 awards. This consistency is an added evidence of the accuracy of the scoring system.

Owners show consistency in winning, too. This year the Myrick's and Pearl Allison stand at the top of the class for number of Western Winners—seven each. Mrs. Chris Klinkhammer follows closely with six, followed by Marguerite Goforth and Peggy Galvin at four each. There were eight Westerners with three winning cats, and twenty-one with two.

So comes to a close by far the most successful of all Western show seasons, with more shows and more exhibitors than ever before. This year a total of 179 awards were made. Last year there were 161, and in 1958 only 148.

WHITES LEAD MIDWEST

Nikki Horner of Newburgh, Indiana, with seven Midwest wins sweeps the two top Midwest honors with her great Orange-Eyed Whites, gaining High-Scoring All-Midwestern with Qd. Gr. Ch. Shawnee Moonflight, male, and OSHSAM with Qd. Gr. Ch. Shawnee Soap Suds, female. This is the first time that one owner has captured both top spots in the Midwest. In addition, Mrs. Horner's cats gained a national first by sweeping all four Orange-Eyed White wins with her Db. Gr. Ch. Shawnee Moondance going MHM male and her Gr. Ch. Shawnee Moonflower MHM female. Never before has one owner gained all four wins for a single color.

For the first time in the Midwest, too, a Manx, Tr. Gr. & Qn. Ch. Xantha's Candace of Tra Mar, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tracy became Highest-Scoring Shorthair. OS Shorthair is Harriet Wolfgang's RM Tr. Gr. Ch. Fan-T-Cee Phoenix Wolfgang. RM Db. Gr. Ch. Veja Suda Choi gains high-scoring Siamese. The OS Manx award goes to Tr. Ch. Glen Orry's Olof of Manx. Highest Domestic Shorthair is Gr. Ch. Lavender Silver Pattern of Wila-Blite; OS, a tie between Gr. Ch. Shawnee Jentle Spark and RM Gr. Ch. & Ch. Karabee I'm a Lotus Lilly Too.

Top Neuter is Ch. Terry's Frost-Ting; top Spay, Ups 'N' Downs

MIDWESTERN TOP TEN

9. Db. Gr. & Qd. Ch. Blue Gables Glamour Girl, Blue Cream Longhair Female.
10. Db. Gr. Ch. Shawnee Moondance, Orange-Eyed White Longhair Male.

Jah-Dah-Ling. Blue Acre MacBeth is top kitten, with Shu-Shu as OS.

This was a great year for former All-Midwestern Kittens, with five of them capturing 1960 awards: Moondance was AMK and AAK in 1959, Ch. Prestwood Sapphire of Erman (AMK, AAK 58), Db. Ch. Creggyn Doo's Pasteurized (AMK, AAK 59), Gr. Ch. Green Lane Van of Velvet Shadow (AMK, AM, AA 57), and Gr. & Qd. Ch. Lauretide Solitaire, Imp., of Madali (MHMK, AM, AHM 58).

Gr. & Tr. Ch. Ahmaq of Katnip Korner retains his unbroken record of winning a Midwest award every year beginning in 1954. Marie Wilson's cats—Tr. Gr. & Qd. Ch. Lee's Hi-Hat Sweet Regardless, Db. Gr. & Qd. Ch. Blue Gables Blonde Blessing, and Db. Gr. & Qd. Ch. Blue Gables Sweet Regardless—have the unique claim to fame of having all three won Midwest honors every year since 1956. Three other cats date back to 1956, nine to 1957, nine to 1958, and twenty-eight made their first appearances last year.

Leading the Midwest in number of wins are Karen and Phoebe Bjerkeng with nine, and an additional two wins by David Bjerkeng bring the family's total to eleven. The Slaters have six winners; two owners have five each; four have four each; ten three each; and seventeen have two.

This year the number of Midwest winners was the highest in history—173. The 1959 total was 163, and the 1958 but 148.

BALLET FOR WHITE PAWS

Jade grasshoppers, and butterflies'
bright wings
Gay challenge are to Pete;
All dancing, shifting flutter-things
Creatures airborne and fleet
Elude his paw; in vain
He leaps — to capture only vagrant
air,
They fool him, time and time again.
Through summer evenings, in the scented dark,
Fantastic ballet four white paws
present.
Thistledown kitten reaching for a fiery spark—
Bright glim of star in his small firmament!

SIAMESE

Amazing that a strip of pelt
So sleek, a form so smooth and svelte,
Two eyes as blue as heaven's spread,
Two cheekbones richly chocolate,
Four legs of slender handicraft
Equipped with beauty fore and aft,
And bearing over everything
The prideful posture of a king—
Should climb my knee, and lie down
flat,
And need my love like any cat!

THE CATS' TEA PARTY

The lady cats had a tea party,
And they mewed until they were hoarse.
They drank a pitcher of thick, rich

And catnip tea, of course!

THROWBACK

My little pink-nosed Abyssinian,
Descended from a Carthaginian,
And Egypt's Sacred Cat, conducts himself
With dignity, a fluffy roguish elf.
He proudly wears his mother's shorthaired coat,
A silver tabby. Silken hairs on throat,
And underside, reveal his Persian sire.
Smoke-rimmed clear hazel eyes at times breathe fire.
Though not brown-ticked to blend
with desert scene,
Like cats from Ethiopia, his mien,
Expression, eyes and terra-cotta nose
Suggest an ancient link in modern clothes.

—Edna Victoria Nowlin

SOMETHING IN COMMON

No longer is she lithe and kittenish and unconcerned.
Torpil and swollen, she takes her ease
in the sun,
Panting quietly, a little short of breath;
When she can rouse herself she stalks
from room to room
Seeking a soft and private place for her anticipated young.
With clock-like regularity, driven by
hunger's ravennings,
She pleads in long miaows for any sort of sustenance.
She doesn't eat—she greedily devours.
And yet, I reverence her maternity—
She looks and acts so much like me.

And if you doubt
You've never had a cat about.*

—Ruth M. Ridout

STRAY CAT

A lonely one
With heart to fill,
I saw you sitting
Upon my window sill.
I had resolved
Not to care again
For creature great or small
But you were such a sad one
Crying in the rain
I had to heed your call
And let you in.
Then when I had fed you
And you were so bright,
So curious of the house and me,
I couldn't put you out
Again into the night,
But brought in a basket
(This I never thought to do)
And made a nice, warm
Sleeping place for you.
"Tomorrow you will go,
Rain or shine,"
I sternly said,
As I turned out the light
And went to bed.
But when morning came
I was awakened
By a loud, singing purr
That pleased me so
I gently stroked your fur
And decided we two
Must breakfast together;
After which, of course,
I couldn't let you go
No matter what the weather.

—Sue Settle Brooks

TO A CAT

I look upon you as a piece of leaden sculpture
Sitting on haunches erect, elegant, and arrogant,
Your curving body forming a symmetrical structure
Simply, yet impeccably, molded for all to enchant.
In your exotic, liquid green eyes
sloping
Like two perfect phosphoric emeralds, scintillate
Shimmering sparks sensitive, perceiv-ing, and groping
The cryptic motives of the world, and calculate.
But stroking your abundant, lavish
fur I know
No matter what impels me to caress
Your fine, sleek body and poised paws
below,
Your independent mind I never shall possess.
Always you'll pose before me majestic
and distant,
Your feline heart undaunted; your eyes asquint.

—Bunny Woodward

CAT IN THE CITY

A cat who walks upon a leash
Is never known to brawl
Beneath a wanton midnight moon;
He's scarce a cat at all.
A cat who wears a bell and collar,
Who dines on lobster out of tins,
And owns a comb, and sleeps on silk,
Is not the type for feline sins.
His fur's untouched by weeds or wind,
And isn't it a pity that
The only forest's made of chairs
Where prowls this wistful city cat?

—Martha Shaw

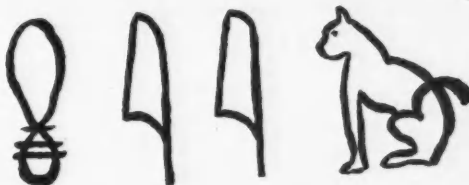

CATASTROPHE

Lucifer, the little cat,
Black as seven crows,
Sniffed in every crocus —
Got pollen on his nose.
Irritated bumble bees
Buzzed, "Better keep away from these —
These flowers are ours!"
Did he listen? He did not,
Need I tell you what he got? —
A swelled-up nose
And two stung toes.
Guess he can't be blamed, at that:
He was merely being Cat —
And cats, despite their dignity,
Are nine-tenths curiosity.

—Marion Doyle

THE CAT IN THE ALPHABET

by Jean Catherine Conger

Among the shifting sands of Egypt, there are still found ancient clay tablets incised with hieroglyphics. It was here that the cat began her role in the alphabet.

The Greek word hieroglyphien means "to carve". Ancient Greek travelers called Egypt's picture-writings "hieroglyphics", because they were found carved on temples or sacred objects. They were strange symbols: eyes, boats, plants, and five types of cats. The secretive ways that little cats have well fit them for being in a lost language which remained a mystery for centuries.

When Napoleon and his army invaded Egypt as part of France's conflict with England in 1798, he felt so certain of victory that he brought along an elderly French art-collector to gather the spoils—the treasures of Pharaohs. This was the Baron Dominique Vivant-Denon.

Speedily losing, Napoleon fled Egypt after fifty-two days. The good Baron had done his work well, however. Crates of hieroglyphic-covered treasures stood on the wharves, waiting to be shipped to France. (The victorious English simply sent them to the British Museum instead.) When the Baron had discovered treasures too heavy to take, he had artists copy their unreadable picture-writing. Baron Vivant-Denon escaped to France with these copies. Because of Napoleon's over-confidence, the learned men of Europe were able to compare hundreds of hieroglyphics in Paris and London for the first time. Twenty years later, and without walking farther than the halls of the British Museum, Thomas Young and others began deciphering the Pharaohs' secret meaning which cats had helped keep so well.

Felines had a good deal to say in hieroglyphics. There were lions, leopards' heads, and cheetahs among other symbols. A reclining lion equalled the letter "I"; so it is true to say that Cleopatra had a lion in her name! Household cats were not used as often as the king of the beasts. Cats were not assigned a letter. Like most hieroglyphic symbols, they remain unpronounced. (Perhaps it would be fairer to say that cat-pictures had no known pronunciation.)

The silent cats all had the same meaning, in spite of their different poses. All five cat profiles face left. Some show an uplifted paw; some show one or two ears. One cat has no tail. The tailless cat is the most crudely drawn, and is probably an older form. Unless the lost tail is an artistic oversight, however, this gives the first suggestion known to me that Manx-type cats existed in ancient Egypt.

A few symbols were confused with cats. The symbol now called a cheetah, appears like a walking cat except for its tail dragging on the ground. No respectable little cat would do this. The symbol of a dog, walking with its curled tail in the air, so resembles a cat that it fooled scholars until they learned to read this lost language.

When placed at the end of a word, cat-pictures had two uses. One was to signify "a gift". This proved again how proud Egyptians were of their cats, who brought the catch of their endless curiosity to their masters or mistresses. In time, the only way to show that a word was a gift was to add a cat.

Egyptians said the word "cat" in many ways. In The Science and Mystery of the Cat, written by Ida Mellen exactly twenty years ago, she says she believes that people could understand the name "cat" in nearly any language. Most names mimic a cat's cry: "meow". This is true of Egyptian. The cat's names are "mau", "maai", and eight other spellings of this cry. The only Egyptian spelling that does not fit is "amm". Perhaps this word, instead, imitated a cat's contented purr as she lay sleeping in sunshine.

"Mai" was one of the cat-cries in hieroglyphics. According to E. Wallis Budge, English historian, the word included a cat and two plants, but the original of the fourth symbol (on the left) is unknown.

The cat-picture, when not signifying a gift, was only placed after one of these cat cries. Writing the word "cat" in hieroglyphics, one needed such symbols as balls of cord, plants, and sickles, as well as items not so easily recognized. Yet the cat-picture did not have to be included, too. It seems that Egyptians added a cat-picture only when they did not wish to leave the reader of these strange symbols any doubt, that they really spoke of a cat.

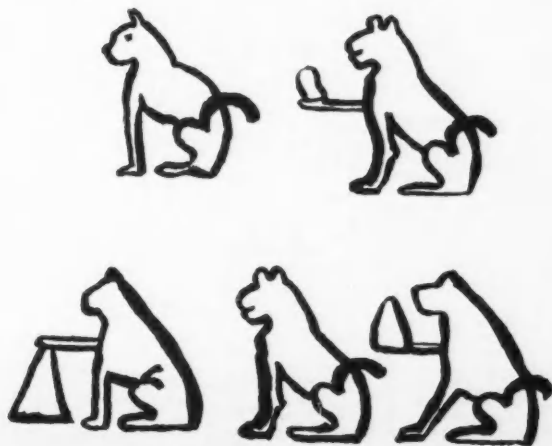

Among the papyri now in the British Museum, there is just such a case: a cat appears unexpectedly in a 3,400-year-old story. This is the famed Papyrus of Nu: oldest illuminated one known. Nu was not a king, but a prime minister of the XVIII Dynasty. In his story, a prayer, the sun-god is called "The Great Cat" of an old legend. The legend says this cat dwelt beneath the branches of the sacred Persea tree, and had slain the serpent of evil. Lest the sun-god should miss the point of this flattery, Nu included a cat-picture after the name, mau.

This probably is the earliest cat-joke. The word mau also means "like". Egyptians said about Ra, their creating sun-god: "He is like (mau) unto which he had made." In calling the sun-god a cat, (mau), Nu makes one of the oldest known puns.

Nu's cat-picture is the most graceful feline profile in hieroglyphics. It has but one curved ear. Its tail is longer, and more gayly carried. The body is well-proportioned: it is modern. When Nu wrote his prayer, the art of picture-writing and its cats were already centuries old—older than the Pyramids which guard the Nile.

Across the Atlantic, felines appeared in later ages, among the picture-writing of Mexican Aztecs. Yet there were no house-cats. Aztecs called their feline symbol, "ocelotl". It looked like a fanciful tiger's head, with yawning jaws. The ancient American picture-writers—Incas, Mayas, Aztecs—used decorative figures instead of trying to closely copy nature, as the Egyptians did.

and clean—no crusty wax or exudations? How about the bodies—is the fur groomed and perfectly clean all over? If not, don't let the breeder tell you cats shouldn't be bathed. They should be—whenever they're dirty. This is even more important with grown-ups than with kittens, since they don't have any mothers to do that kind of work. Be especially sure to look at the tails on both the males and females. They will require washing more than the rest of the bodies, and often I just bathe the tail, not the whole cat. For shampoos I use any of the CATS Magazine approved products or even Vel or Prell or J&J baby shampoo. The latter is very good on kittens, for it won't burn their little eyes, so they don't become frightened of the bathtub. Also, I like to powder my little ones with J&J baby powder when I've finished the bath—it makes them smell just like little babies are supposed to.

So be sure the kittens look clean, healthy, and happy. Now, you can take a chance on love. Watch the kittens playing in their cages or on the floor. Then cuddle each little one that appeals to you. There are no rules here. But there's some marvelous empathy at work. And when you leave with your new heart-mate, you'll find that you've chosen the one bundle of love in the world that perfectly fits only you.

WORLD'S LARGEST SCRATCHING POST

In California's Sequoia National Park, there is a group of giant trees on which the thick, fibrous bark has been shredded and torn away to great depth. This is the work of roaming bears which dig into the bark to remove a form of scale or "hangnail" growth that they find annoying. Stately trees, centuries old—250 ft. high and measuring 20 ft. in diameter at the base—are truly the world's largest scratching posts.

LOWE'S Scratchin' Post, shown below, is the only post which pet cats can sink their claws into with a digging motion—as the bears do in using the bark of the giant Sequoias!

So much mystery and stigma are linked with the Manx breed of cats that would-be Manx fanciers often shy away and novice breeders often suffer heartbreak on their first breeding efforts. To become a Manx breeder is a real challenge. Most people can look in a dictionary, or cat book to find that the Manx cat comes from the Isle of Man and is known for his taillessness, but any other information is likely to be contradictory and shrouded in secretiveness.

At present, I am working with a group of geneticists, with information supplied by a group of breeders, to determine the best principles to apply in breeding the mysterious Manx cats. The purpose of the study is to determine why Manx are so rare and difficult to propagate compared to other breeds of cats and whether this fact can be altered by any method of breeding. Until now, each Manx breeder has had his own best theories built up by individual experience and observation.

Our findings will be published when our work is completed. Meantime, here is general information which many fanciers may find interesting and helpful.

Perhaps the most misunderstood fact about Manx is that they are not all tailless! Just the "show type" is tailless. Litters of purebred Manx kittens are apt to consist of rumpies (no tail), stumpies (short tail), and longies (long tail). Of course, each kitten retains most Manx characteristics whether tailless or long tailed. These characteristics are the short, muscular "bull" neck; the short, double coat having a downy undercoat and longer outer fur which appears fluffy like a rabbit's fur; long hind legs with short front legs and deep flanks which give the Manx a rabbit gait; a short back, arching upwards from shoulders to a well rounded rump; a large head with prominent cheeks and broad muzzle; eyes that are large and round; ears rounding slightly to a point, and a nose a little on the long side.

The short tailed "stumpy" and the long tailed "longie" generally carry these characteristics and are desirable in breeding as well as for loving pets. Most Manx breeders like to introduce at least a stumpy every third generation to cut down the mortality rate that associates itself with breeding rumpy to rumpy. My own experience has taught me to use a stumpy-to-rumpy or rumpy-to-longie cross at each mating! I especially like to mate purebred studbook longies (of the proper color and show type background) to my top show champions that have excessively short backs. So far this has cut my mortality rate one hundred percent. Before, about fifty percent of my kittens failed to survive! Furthermore, I now have just as many show type rumpies appearing in each litter as before — only now they're all surviving!

Mrs. Crossley owns the Manxion Cattery registered with CFA, CFF, and UCF and has been breeding manx for several years. In addition to her own line Manx from other top catteries and imported lines were experimented on to draw her conclusions.

While we're on the subject of long-tailed Manx, a friend of mine who is a former Manx breeder and now a popular judge of cat shows, told me of her initial experience as a novice breeder. No one had told her of the existence of long-tailed Manx. After viewing her first litter of new born Manx kittens she sat down and cried. Out of five Manx kittens, three had long tails! She just couldn't think what had happened. The Manx sire and dam had been purchased in good faith and watched over so very carefully! When she found out more about Manx she was very conscientious about passing on her knowledge to all her customers and novice breeders who came to her for help and advice. She couldn't bear having others suffer the same doubts as she had had with her first litter of Manx kittens.

I know of many other Manx breeders and Manx enthusiasts who have had similar experiences. Sooner or later we must come to realize that our tailed Manx are important to us—not a disgrace.

It is the long-tailed Manx that may save a valuable line from extinction when everything else fails. Most Manx breeders do everything possible to discourage weakness in their breeding. If the lives of weak kittens are saved and the kits made healthy, they should be neutered or spayed to avoid the possibility of passing their weakness to their off-spring.

Yes, the Manx breeder will do his utmost to avoid the lethal factor, weakness and/or deformity often associated with rumpy-to-rumpy breeding. A good breeder will use his Manx stumplings and longies to the greatest advantage. A courageous Manx breeder also gives complete information so as to dispel any stigma and mystery surrounding the rare, desirable Manx cat.

NEW PRESIDENT—16 CLUBS—FOR UCF

Ending its most successful year in history, the United Cat Federation held its 1960 Annual Meeting on May 14 at Garden Grove, Calif.

Sixteen clubs were registered in good standing marking the expansion of UCF from California to as far north as Calgary, Canada, and as far east as Rochester, N. Y.

Observing the constitutional limitation of three years in any office, President W. F. Jack Wedel ended his three year tenure as president. Because of the constantly increasing workload, it was also decided to split the office of Secretary-Recorder into two divisions. New officers then elected were: President, Leigh Manley; First Vice President, Fred Galvin; Second Vice President, Phyllis Whitney; Secretary, Dallas Sidlo; Treasurer, Veda Van Holten; Recorder, Ann Manley. Board of Directors is: Carolyn Allig, Katherine Beswick, Mr. Galvin, Herbert Gosling, Isabel Mender, Jean Wuiner, Mrs. Van Holten, Mrs. Whitney, Mr. Wedel, Stanley Lydick, and Bob Smith.

NORTH TEXAS KITTEN KARNIVAL

The kids and kits at North Texas are arranging a special show for kittens, neuters, spays, and household pets to be held at the home of Mrs. H. W. Mayhew on Sunday, August 28. Judging will be under ACFA license by Walter Carl Darnell, and a fun program has been lined up for between-times. Write Annabel Hoyt, Room 410, 1416 Commerce St., Dallas 1, for entry info. Entries close August 10 — Donations for trophies gratefully accepted.

DOUBLE ACA SHOW IN CALIFORNIA

The first double ACA show to be held in the West is scheduled by the Contra Costa Cat Fanciers and the Tri County Cat Club at Paradise on December 3-4. Secretaries are Eloise Magnan, 5540 Castro Road, El Sobrante, and Vivian Osborn Peterson, 5938 Crest View Drive, Paradise. Full information on this and other shows will appear every month in the Show Calendar pages.

BURMESE SYMPOSIUM

The Frontier Cat Fanciers of Oklahoma City sponsored a Burmese Symposium, the first of its kind in the Southwest on June 11, and the following day held a Burmese-Abyssinian exhibit.

Featured speaker for both meetings was Mrs. L. Darrell Sample, CFA judge.

The meeting was well-publicized and was open to the public so as to widen the interest in Oklahoma of these two comparatively rare breeds.

CCCC FUND GIVES $385.83 TO ANGELL

Florence Kemmer writes: I would like to call on CATS Magazine to let those who so generously contributed to the Circus City Cat

Club Foundation Fund know that we used their donations as a contribution to cat disease research at Angell Memorial Hospital in Boston. Of 1000 letters which we mailed out, 172 responses were received. I was disappointed that there were not more, but I am hopeful that other organizations will carry on the work when they know what can be accomplished.

The Hospital acknowledged the gift as follows:

Dear Mrs. Kemmer:

In behalf of our Angell Memorial Hospital, and especially of Dr. Jean Holzworth, permit me to express the Directors' grateful appreciation for the Circus City Cat Club's generous gift of $385.83 toward research in cat diseases which Dr. Holzworth is to direct. This is a very splendid gift indeed, and I should like to thank each and every one who contributed to the Fund and to assure them that the gift will be most carefully used, and certainly in the interest of cat diseases which Dr. Holzworth is eminently qualified to conduct.

If more people like yourselves would make such research possible, much unnecessary suffering in cats could practically be assured.

In the meantime, our grateful appreciation and our receipt for your gift.

Sincerely yours,

s/ Eric M. Hansen

MOST NORTHERLY CLUB REPORTS

We are the Edmonton Cat Fancier's Club, a new club which was formed about two years ago and is the most northerly group in Canada.

Last fall we exhibited and helped at the Calgary show and we plan to do so again this September.

We have not had a show in Edmonton as yet, but our club members are busy raising money in various ways to finance a show ere long. We are having an Autumn Tea and display of some of the rarer breeds of show cats at the Hudson's Bay Auditorium, September 10, and we hope this will create interest in the various purebred breeds and draw new members to our club.

One of our members, Margaret Steers, had the honor to own the first Burmese kittens born in Alberta, March 24, and all four are doing well.

CATS AND CANARIES

by Rosemary Robinson

At our house, we have five cats and three hundred canaries. The cats are pets; the canaries are a business. And we all get along very well. Of course, it's harder to make the cats behave than the canaries. But the canaries are in cages and the cats run free.

The cats are four different colors, and all have completely different personalities.

Jezebel is a three-colored cat, and has one little three-colored kitten. She is a very nice house-type kitty. She is usually so grateful to be inside, lying on the couch or a bed, that she completely ignores the birds. She and her kitten are frequently in the kitchen in their basket. She does more field hunting than the other three cats and was the first to go into the "birdroom" for a snack. But it took only a few sessions with a folded newspaper and being put outside, to convince "Jezzie" that catching a tweety-bird just wasn't worth it.

Tiger Tim is a little different. He isn't so much a bird-catcher as a mouse-catcher. And when we see a mouse in the birdroom (as we frequently do, since mice love to eat the birdseed) we always try to give Tiger Tim first chance at the mouse. And how he loves mice! He races under the nearest bed to eat his catch, and presently comes out, licking his chops; then heads for the birdroom again. Mainly because he is hoping that if he gets back in there quickly enough, he'll find another tidbit scurrying into the closet.

Rebel is a handsome black and white tomcat with a black mask and, on his chin, a most unusual black spot that looks like the goatee on a southern gentleman. Hence, the name "Rebel Rouser." Reb, for short. He is not particular—he likes mice and canaries and would take either, if given an equal chance. He is very determined, in spite of past punishment, and insists on standing on his hind legs, looking into a cage full of big and little "canapes." For a long time, Reb was afraid of mice because one bit him on the nose when he was a kitten. It took several months to convince him that mice were edible. He is a very sneaky cat and reminds us of the comic character "Sylvester" except for the lack of a red, bulbous nose. He likes to sit in the doorway of the birdroom, licking his coat, flicking sly little glances through the door at the canaries.

The tiniest and daintiest of the cats is little Midnight. We call her our "doll-baby" and she is a petite coal-black darling. Unfortunately, she is a holy terror around canaries. She loves them, she wants them, and no newspaper ever hurt enough to make her change her mind. Her favorite outdoor pastime is sitting on the windowledge, looking into the birdroom, pressing her little face against the windowpane. She is an ardent mouser though, and when she has a mouse no other cat is big or tough enough to take it away from our two-pound "lion." Including Rebel. She is also very sneaky and when we open the door and sing "outside", she knows what we mean. She tries to hide by climbing up into the bedsprings, or into the washing machine motor.

Throughout nearly twenty years of canary-raising and having several cats around most of the time, we have had only one real mishap. Once, a kitten was left indoors while the family went to church. When we returned home, she had killed nearly a dozen birds and had eaten only a few. She was merely killing the birds for sport.

We have had cats who went from one extreme to another. One cat would lie on a bed and if a bird accidentally got out, it could fly all around the bedroom and even land in front of the cat, but it didn't pay any attention to the bird. Then, there was one little kitten whose little whiskers and chops quivered every time he saw a bird, and he could not be trusted indoors at all.

Many people wonder how we can afford to have cats around, with all the birds.

The answer is simple: Eternal vigilance. We love cats, we respect their wonderful qualities, but we understand them. We might deter them from performing wholesale slaughter on our canaries, but we could never completely convince any one of them that canaries weren't made simply to be eaten. Someday, when we can afford it, all the canaries will have to go. But there'll always be a cat around. To us, a home is just a house unless there's a cat around.

The BOOK CORNER

CAT'S CRADLE, by Ron Spillman and Jack Ramsay with words by Paul Dehn. Doubleday & Company, Inc., Garden City, New York. $2.95.

Cat's Cradle presents a very humorous picture-poetry story of the antics of two tabby kittens, a puppy of somewhat uncertain ancestry and a pet mouse as an occasional straight man.

Congratulations to Ron Spillman and Jack Ramsay for a superb photographic presentation and patience in capturing the action—from spilling the eggs to investigating the teapot—at the crucial moment.

The poetic story part of "Cat's Cradle" is reminiscent of Fitzgerald's translation of the "Rubaiyat"; Paul Dehn skillfully prepares the reader for the action to come.—E. M.

◊These cats pictured in past issues—those not presented in the past, we will present in the future.

WE WOULD PARTICULARLY like to point out that of the 45 JUDGES at our 16 multiple SHOWS last season,
44 JUDGES gave the above Whites Best and/or Opposite
Sex COLOR WINS, and only ONE JUDGE — CHRISTINE HARTMANN — defeated Moonflight and Soap Suds on color wins to Whites other than Shawnee. DON CLAPP gave Moonflight his only Opposite Sex color win of the season to a White other than Shawnee. These are our losses as well as our wins on the Whites. To list all wins on the other Longhairs and Domestic would be far to lengthy. We will list only Best in Show wins in the All-American issue.

GREAT CATS OFTEN take second place as in this case

We pay tribute to a great cat brought out intermittently to finish his grand championships.

Shown in competition with litter mates Moonflight and Soap Suds.

Wins do not include his color, novice, open, champion,

ALPHABET

(from page 7)

When picture-writing became obsolete, the cat did not end her romance with the alphabet. She sought solace instead in alphabet rhymes.

Speakers of the King's English owe a debt to the cat. In their childhood, most were helped to learn the alphabet by the familiar rhyme:

C is for cat . . .
D is for dog

Flavor was recently added to the story of those inseparable companions, animals and alphabets, when Christopher Morley's poem recommended serving alphabet soup with animal crackers at tea-time.

When did the alphabet rhyme begin? One of the oldest is Psalm 119. Its twenty-two parts each begin with one of the twenty-two letters of the Hebrew alphabet: from "aleph" to "tau". No animal is included in this psalm. By the 14th century, alphabet rhymes appeared both in France and England. Chaucer wrote one. Persuasions for alphabet learning were needed before his day, however. In The Prioress' Tale, (1375), Chaucer wrote of what was taught in the medieval village schools of England:

"This is to segn, to singen, and to rede
As smale children doon in hir childhede."

Where and when animals crept into these alphabet rhymes is a mystery. France is a leading contender, but so is England and even Boston. When Charles Perrault printed his collection of French folklore at Paris, 1647, he gave it the title of a now famous woman, Mere L'Oye (Mother Goose). Perrault included the story "Puss in Boots". It was the first appearance of this devoted French cat, who used her wits and boots to win her master a fortune.

Among the inhabitants of colonial Boston, was a Dutch woman named Elizabeth Vergoose. She called her book Mother Goose Rhymes (1719). Although she appears in all current versions, no one knows if the cat lay in the pages of this early American edition. Not one copy remains.

From wherever the animal alphabets were hiding, many of them suddenly sprang into the next century with a cat-like pounce. And almost all of them identify "C" with cat. Novelist Thackeray wrote one in 1833. Several were written by his contemporary English humorist, Edward Lear. Cat-lovers also remember Lear as the author of that charming nonsense rhyme:

The Owl and the Pussy-Cat went to sea
In a beautiful pea-green boat.

Nevertheless, no author could claim most of the animal alphabets recited on English and American soil during this period. Their origins had slipped away in the ages, but still have enabled us to trace a record from cats who stared, silent and wise, out of ancient clay tablets to their modern sons and daughters of rhymes. If cats have a tenth life, they have spent it in the alphabet.

BACK FENCE

page 38)

And deservedly so. All manner of homage has been shed on these creatures since time began. A junior, but none the less gratifying, honor was paid to them this year when the poster contest, sponsored by the American Humane Association, was won by Mitch Mertes. He is a senior at Norman, Oklahoma, High School and his display was a charming one of three slightly abstract cats. It is on the cover of the Association's national magazine and in color. The lettering on the poster reads "LOVE EACH ONE". Out of 1,834 entries coming from all states and three foreign countries, it is pleasing to note that the one featuring felines exclusively was the choice.

Should your children, first to twelfth grades, be interested in entering next year's Animal in Art contest, your local humane society can give necessary details.

We can give you details on how to build a gadget if you are one of the many owners of cats who have a weakness for corn on the cob. This gimmick is designed to keep your floors free of melted butter and not-eaten nibs. The wood used for this cob-holder and rotator can be made from the ends of a box. The two upright holders are nailed to the bottom piece. Holes are drilled near the top of each upright through which the heavy wire supporting the corn can be inserted. The wire, with a sharp point on one end and a bent-around loop handle at the other can be made from a clothes hanger. Who knows, after it is built it might be just what your cat has needed for years. By starting it now, it may be ready by the time corn is down to fifty-cents a dozen.

This is also time of year when many towns and home-owners start spraying fields, wooded sections, and lawns. One of our nicest friends wrote and suggested we advise our readers to be very careful of pets after any spraying of weed-killer is done.

She lost three cats within a week and the veterinarian who did an autopsy on one of them said that whatever caused the death was so completely absorbed into the system that detection was impossible. In all three instances, the cats had been allowed outside and returned to die in a matter of hours. No symptoms . . . except perhaps unusual quietness.

The doctor suggested, since he had heard of other cases such as this after field spraying, that the cat came into contact with a massive dose. That is, having walked through the newly sprayed areas and having obtained enough on her coat to kill her when she licked it off.

We urge you to make certain if you or your neighbors use a weed or insect powder or spray, to use caution if you allow your pets to roam.

The Back Fence

Really should save the following beauty-of-a-clipping for the show season. But since this issue has some of the results of the '59-'60 shows and many, many handsome felines have their pictures displayed therein, it might be apropos to print it now.

One of our favorite subscribers, who is with the American Embassy in the Sudan, sent in the front page of their local paper, The Phartown Morning News. It carries a column headed "News In Brief", and capital cities of the world have capsuled important items. Rome's contribution that day was . . .

"Regulations for cat lovers who display their animals at the sixth national cat show here later this month include: Exhibitors must stay near their cages and must not make impolite remarks about cats not belonging to them."

Could cat people really be that way? No, it's just that editor Mahgoub Mohd Saleh must have a beautiful sense of humor.

So must Richard Decker. He does those funny cartoons used by the Philadelphia Bulletin that appear in many magazines and papers. You have likely noticed the In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin ads.

Recently, he featured a cat show. The exhibitors are all reading the paper, the judge is leaping away from a happy skunk who is hugging the Best of Show cup. The expressions on the cats' faces are a joy.

Another face that is causing comment in Twin Falls, Idaho, is that of Sam, a Siamese. The Time-News of that city ran a photo of him, but it wasn't a very good one of him as all you could pick out were his eyes and one fang.

This particular fang it seems, is Sam's claim to fame. The Gordon Edgar family who called Sam theirs, noticed that the boy was not enjoying his meals the way he once did. He had recently come home rather the worse from wear after a night out, but aside from the usual tears and scars they hadn't noticed anything really wrong with him.

After several days of watching him mope around the house, Mrs. Edgar checked him more thoroughly and discovered that his left front fang was chipped.

Fortunately the Edgars number a dentist among their friends. More fortunately, this dentist thought Sam was a great fellow. The solution was simple. Sam needed a gold tooth. Within a week he had one . . . a beautiful gold one.

For several days Sam just sat and licked the new fang. Then he started to use it. Now, he loves it. Even sleeps on his back with the tooth protruding for all to see.

Vanity, thy name is not woman . . . it is cat.
